

Canadian industrial side

The Mackenzie King government took control of the economy in the form of a publicly funded and a directed supply-side industrial policy. Resources and labour were ...

Stunning charts of how investment in industrial machinery & equipment collapsed a decade ago in Canada but stayed on track in the ...

Macroeconomic data shows the challenges Canadian industrial sectors face. Manufacturing and construction have seen years of falling productivity, which contributed to a ...

The federal government has a vision for bringing Canada into a new industrial era, Industry Minister Melanie Joly said Thursday, unveiling ...

The Defence Industrial Strategy positions Canadian industry to take advantage of $180 billion in defence procurement opportunities and $290 billion in defence-related capital ...

Canada has a long history with industrial policy, with some successes and some failures. There are many lessons to be learned that can help governments judge when and ...

Canada's industrial sector is a pillar of its economy, driving innovation, exports, and job creation. With strengths in energy, ...

The overall Canadian industrial vacancy rate stabilized at 5.4% in Q3 2025, ending the streak of 12 consecutive quarters of vacancy increases. The majority of the Canadian markets followed ...

During the fourth quarter of 2025, the Canadian industrial sector operated within a stabilizing yet complex macroeconomic landscape.

Canada will build on this foundation over the next decade to dramatically expand domestic industrial capacity and economic impact. We will add up to 125,000 new jobs and ...

Canadian industrial side

Web: <https://kgangkologrp.co.za>

